ABSTRACT

This catalog is a checklist that provides an overview of objectives that can be explored in an adult literacy program. It is intended to (1) help instructors form a quick idea of what students already know; (2) show learners that they already do know a great deal; and (3) help learners and instructors plan the program ahead by making a selection to suit the individual learner's needs and interests. The catalog specifies literacy skills and objectives according to three categories: prereading/writing, applied, and technical. The prereading/writing section describes a range of skills that a learner has or needs at the beginning of the reading and writing process. The applied section looks at literacy skills from a usage perspective--how they are used in daily life. The technical section describes a variety of discrete skills involved in the reading and writing process. The applied and technical sections each describe three skill levels, with students meeting the objectives of level three probably ready to do secondary school academic work. Some literacy skills involving computer use are included in the catalog. Appendixes include needs and interests inventories in reading, writing, and mathematics; a work plan; an achievement record; sample certificates; and a resource inventory of more than 2,300 items that lists for each skill in the catalog an appropriate book, author, publisher, publication date, and relevant pages. Preface

The Adult Literacy Skills Catalogue (ALSCat) is a checklist which gives an overview of objectives that can be explored in an adult literacy program. It is intended to (1) help instructors form a quick idea of what students already know; (2) show learners that they already do know a great deal; and (3) help learners and instructors plan out the program ahead by making a selection to suit the individual learner's needs and interests.

Instructors, especially when they are working with learners at different levels, need to be able to see individual progress at a glance. With students dropping in irregularly, they want to be able to quickly review and continue a learner's program.

Learners want to understand the project and activities they are working on and to take part in the planning of their program. As well, they want assurance that they are progressing. Using this catalogue as a checklist, with full participation of the learner, should go a long way toward achieving these goals.

A fourth obvious use of this catalogue is administrative - for use in placement, record-keeping, and planning.

Organization

ALSCat specifies literacy skills and objectives according to three categories: Pre-Reading/Writing, Applied, and Technical.

The Pre-Reading/Writing section describes a range of skills that a learner has or needs at the very beginning of the reading and writing process. The Applied section looks at literacy skills from a usage perspective - how we use reading and writing in our lives. The Technical section describes a variety of discrete skills involved in the reading and writing process. Pre-Reading/Writing is a preparation for working in the Applied and Technical sections.

The Applied and Technical sections each describe three skill levels. These levels are not intended to correspond to grade levels; however, we expect that the majority of learners who check off most objectives described in Level Three will be in a position to begin following a secondary school academic program - if this is one of their goals. In reality, most students function at different levels, for different skills or functions.

Level-One learners recognize some of the uses of reading and writing. They believe they will be able to learn to read and write and they want to learn. They have developed some enabling physical skills and habits, such as letter recognition and production. They sight-read some survival signs such as Ladies and Exit. They copy their own Experience Stories with reasonable accuracy and will attempt to read them. They generally read word by word but they are beginning to anticipate what will follow. They recognize punctuation and stop at the end of a sentence in oral reading. They create and write sentences on their own.

Level-Two learners write short friendly letters and messages. They demonstrate confidence that they will eventually be able to read and write with ease. They cope with basic encounters such as banking, shopping, bills, dictionary, newspaper, and messages from their children's schools.

Level-Three learners follow written instructions, read for information, fill in forms, write messages at work and write longer letters. Beyond this, they are beginning to read and write for self-awareness. They choose their own reading and read for pleasure and self-improvement. They are familiar with different kinds of reading and use indexes and tables of contents in books. They compose longer pieces and employ longer and different kinds of sentences. They use basic principles of punctuation and layout and are able to proof-read their work and correct it.

Since computers are becoming more central to literate communication and increasing numbers of adult literacy programs have them, some literacy skills involving computer use are included in this catalogue.

Whenever possible, learners should have access to this catalogue, so they can go shopping in it and choose items they want as if they were ordering from a store catalogue.

Acknowledgement

Special credit is due to Kate Parry (Hunter College of the City University of New York), who read the original draft and made important suggestions regarding organization. Susan Lytle (University of Pennsylvania) pointed up areas which required significant revision. Thanks are also due to the Adult Basic Education instructors of the Ottawa Board of Education who gave valuable feedback on content, organization, and implementation of the Adult Literacy Skills Catalogue.

Things to think about

Teaching adults is different from teaching children.

Children are required to learn what the teacher tells them to learn. If adults do not learn what they came for, they get up and leave. ALSCat is a tool to help adults choose what they want to learn.

Literacy is a culture; it is not simply a set of skills.

As people join more fully in the life of a reading and writing society, they read and write more fluently. For adults, becoming literate means seeing themselves differently, becoming part of a different culture.

An adult literacy class is a society of readers and writers. New students are accepted into the class and join in the class's life and activities. Soon, with the help and example of students and teacher, the new students begin reading and writing, too.

This implies much more than teaching concepts and drilling skills; it implies talking, listening, and sharing ideas.

Adults choose what they want to learn.

The master in a ballroom dancing class teaches the steps his students want to learn, even though he may think other steps are more elegant or more basic. He teaches the steps practised in the clubs where his clients want to dance.

A literacy teacher will help students acquire abilities they would like to incorporate in their own lives. Learners choose the skills they want to learn and negotiate an order they would like to learn them in. The teacher should not feel bound to teach reading and writing skills in a particular order, but should listen to what and when the student wants to learn.

Adults read and write for a purpose.

Children are required to write to please their teacher. Adults expect their writing to achieve something or affect someone. They write with particular people in mind for particular reasons.

Wherever possible, literacy activities should be real life activities: writing to real people, relating real experiences, reading books of real interest, reading and responding to real mail, filling in real application forms, or whatever other tasks have shown up in the students' very real lives.

ALSCat lists many of the reasons adults read and write and the kinds of text they need to interpret or produce.

Talking and listening are as important as writing and reading in a literacy program.

Adult writing involves experimentation, negotiation, and investigation. Oral discussion and trying out ideas on others are important parts of the writing process.

This kind of communication cannot take place without fellow students to communicate with, so group work should be an important part of any literacy program.

Adults do not need more failure.

Students who 'failed' in school the first time around do not need another dose of the same. They need to work at tasks where they can succeed, and they need evidence of their success.

Real world writing and reading tasks based on the students' own experience and needs are much more likely to bring success than the kind of fill-in-the-blanks reading and writing tasks and tests that may have turned them off in school.

Use ALSCat to choose tasks students will be able to succeed in. Also, use the catalogue to show students they are already competent in many areas they may take for granted.

Learning to read and write means learning other things about the world.

It is next to impossible to read and write about things we only vaguely understand. Discussion and investigation are important preparation for any reading or writing task.

Validation of perceptions and discovery of new ideas takes place best in groups of peers.

How to use ALSCat

1. Discuss the Interest Inventory (Appendix 1) with your student. Find interest areas the student wants to work on.
2. Choose an area to start work on. Look it up in the Skills Catalogue and help the student decide on the particular skills they would like to begin with. Booklets listing skills from only one level are available; you may want to supply your student with one of these rather than the whole catalogue, which can be intimidating because of its size.
3. Develop a work plan, possibly using the Work Plan sheet (Appendix 2). New work plans should be developed as old objectives are completed; completed work plans may be kept in students' files, with accomplishments noted.)
4. During assessment period, use the Achievement Record (Appendix 3) as a basis for showing accomplishments. Most learners will have accomplishments at different levels. Use discretion in evaluating whether learners have achieved what they want or require in particular skill areas.

Assessment methods can include observation, self-reporting, analysis of student work, dictation, review tests, and other methods which seem appropriate. (There are few standard tests which show a broad enough range of achievement to be useful in a literacy program.)
5. Certificates (Appendix 4) may be awarded to learners who have achieved the goals relevant to them at a particular level.
6. Use the Resource Inventory (Appendix 5) to help find appropriate materials. The Reading and Writing sections of the Interest Inventory and the Materials Inventory are indexed to the Skills Catalogue; they are frequently updated.

PRE-READING/WRITING SKILLS

Attitude

Develops specific realizable goals with tutor, e.g. helping children with school work, getting a driver's license, shopping alone. 1.1

Direction of reading/writing

Looks to the beginning of book; anticipates direction of script. 1.2

Social sight words

"Reads" common words and symbols in the environment: product warnings, traffic symbols, street signs, parking instructions, names of businesses, men, women, exit, push, pull, up, down, on, off, no smoking, cash, return, open, closed, etc. 1.3

Basic identification

Writes out own name, both non-cursive and cursive (signature). Prints out names of family members. Prints out own name and address (e.g. on back of envelope) without copying. Writes out phone number from memory. 1.4

Shapes

Matches similar shapes and holds pencil confidently. Traces, then copies basic shapes left to right on page within the lines. 1.5

Letters

Points to letters of the alphabet while naming them. Copies capital letters from model produced by tutor. 1.6

Experience Stories

Dictates, reads back, matches words in, and copies one- or two-sentence Experience Stories. 1.7

APPLIED SKILLS

Day-to-day tasks 2.1

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Telephone book 2.1.01	Finds own name in phone book. 2.1.01.01	☐
	Looks up numbers in the white pages; looks at initials if first name is not given. 2.1.01.02		☐
	Tries alternative spelling when looking up number. 2.1.01.03			☐
	Lists friends' names alphabetically in pocket directory; also emergency numbers such as doctors, schools, fire department, ambulances, etc. 2.1.01.04	☐
	Uses yellow pages to find common goods or services. 2.1.01.05		☐
	Uses rate charts to decide when to phone long distance. 2.1.01.06		☐
	Uses yellow pages index; attempts to find government offices in blue pages. 2.1.01.07			☐
Lists 2.1.02	Makes shopping lists with possible reference to flyers. 2.1.02.01	☐
	Starts to organize life by listing and prioritizing activities with help of teacher. 2.1.02.02		☐
	Organizes time with lists of activities. 2.1.02.03			☐
	Keeps agenda. 2.1.02.04			☐
	Writes up supply requisitions for work using vocabulary card or sample form prepared by teacher. 2.1.02.05	☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Instructions 2.1.03	Follows step-by-step instructions accompanied by pictures. 2.1.03.01	☐
	Begins to follow written instructions in sequence. 2.1.03.02		☐
	Follows written instructions step by step. 2.1.03.03			☐
Labels 2.1.04	Follows instructions on prescription medicine labels. Selects common grocery items by reading labels (including No Name). 2.1.04.01	☐
	Interprets instructions on over-the-counter medicine. Adjusts dosages for adults and children. Checks ingredients on food packages. Uses instructions for preparation. 2.1.04.02		☐
	Compares products and prices using information on labels, including ingredients, weight, and volume. 2.1.04.03			☐
Bills, credit, and banking 2.1.05	Recognizes symbols on bills and cheques, e.g. Bell, Consumers Gas, Family Allowance. 2.1.05.01	☐
	Finds the main features of a bill using special vocabulary like amount due , credit and interest . 2.1.05.02		☐
	Begins to keep an itemized monthly budget. Budget should demonstrate where money is spent, show when payments and income are due, and point up credit and service charges. 2.1.05.03			☐
	Uses sales slip to verify prices on grocery order. 2.1.05.04	☐
	Finds amount due or amount receivable . 2.1.05.05	☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Bills, credit, and banking (continued)	Open savings account. Interprets bank books. 2.1.05.06	☐
	Opens chequing account. Begins using it to pay bills. May continue to pay most bills at creditor's office or the bank. 2.1.05.07		☐
	Uses a chequing account regularly to pay bills by mail. 2.1.05.08			☐
Forms and applications 2.1.06	Fills in simple forms correctly: last/first name, surname/family name, Mr./Mrs./Miss/Ms., number and street, apt. #, city or town, province, postal code. Avoids Office Use Only . 2.1.06.01	☐
	Fills in common forms with assistance: employment application, unemployment claims, change of address, general assistance forms. 2.1.06.02		☐
	Fills in common forms without assistance. 2.1.06.03			☐
	Brings more complicated forms to tutor for assistance. 2.1.06.04	☐
Résumés 2.1.07	Reads and discusses a résumé developed with tutor's guidance through Experience Stories and other exercises. 2.1.07.01	☐
	Fills in information on a prepared résumé worksheet. 2.1.07.02		☐
	Creates a draft résumé, given a model. 2.1.07.03			☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Maps 2.1.08	Finds residence, school, job, and two or three other important places on city map. 2.1.08.01	☐
	Makes sketch map directing a stranger to learner's home, school. 2.1.08.02		☐
	Finds provinces and major cities on map of Canada. 2.1.08.03			☐
	Arrives at given address using street signs and numbers. Looks for cross street. Looks for odd or even side of the street. 2.1.08.04	☐
	Uses road maps for longer trips. 2.1.08.05			☐
Note-taking 2.1.09	Begins to take notes in meetings, at lectures, and from reading. 2.1.09.01			☐
Test skills 2.1.10	Understands and uses the conventions of multiple-choice and fill-in-the-blank questions. 2.1.10.01		☐
	Assesses and responds appropriately to essay-type questions requiring a one-paragraph answer. 2.1.10.02			☐

Letters and Messages 2.2

Level 1 Level 2 Level 3

Junk mail
2.2.01

Distinguishes between junk mail and mail which requires attention, and acts accordingly. 2.2.01.01

☐

Notes
2.2.02

Leaves short reminder notes, bits of information, or news for other people in household, at school, or at work. May include names and date. 2.2.02.01

☐

Acts on short routine notes at home and work. 2.2.02.02

☐

Telephone messages 2.2.03

Writes down telephone numbers. Asks for spelling to write down name. 2.2.03.01

☐

Writes down short telephone messages at home and work. 2.2.03.02

☐

Selects pertinent information when taking office phone calls. 2.2.03.03

☐

School messages
2.2.04

Interprets marks on children's report cards. 2.2.04.01

☐

Interprets comments on children's report cards. 2.2.04.02

☐

Signs permission slips and interview request forms appropriately and finds how much money is required. Helps child respond to birthday invitations. 2.2.04.03

☐

Writes notes to teacher explaining children's absence, other concerns. 2.2.04.04

☐

Cards and letters 2.2.05 "Writes" thank you notes, greeting cards, sympathy notes, or short letters to friends or relatives. (Learner dictates message to tutor, then copies tutor's draft.) 2.2.05.01 ☐

"Reads" greeting cards and invitations from friends and relatives. 2.2.05.02 ☐

Enjoys reading friendly letters without assistance. 2.2.05.03 ☐

Writes short, informative letters to friends or relatives. Uses informal letter format (return address, date, salutation, body, and closing) where appropriate. 2.2.05.04 ☐

Writes longer, chatty letters to friends or relatives. 2.2.05.05 ☐

Work and business 2.2.06

Gathers enough information from business or legal correspondence to be able to phone or visit the office which will give more information. 2.2.06.01 ☐

Extracts important information from business or legal correspondence and responds as appropriate. 2.2.06.02 ☐

Uses standard business-letter format (including recipient's title, name, and address) in covering letter for job application, letter of complaint, letter requesting action or assistance, or other formal letters. 2.2.06.03 ☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Work and business (continued)	Uses polite tone and simple, direct language (not stilted or wordy) in formal letters. States purpose or request in first paragraph. Gives pertinent information in subsequent paragraphs. 2.2.06.04			☐
	Reads and acts on memos and other circulars at work. 2.2.06.05		☐
	Uses standard memo format in internal work-related communication. Imparts relevant information in a clear style to be acted upon. 2.2.06.06			☐
	Writes concise reports as required at work. 2.2.06.07			☐
Envelopes 2.2.07	Copies recipient's address on front and writes own address on back of envelope, perhaps on pencilled-in lines. 2.2.07.01		☐
	Addresses envelopes unassisted, placing return address on front and putting stamp in upper right hand corner. 2.2.07.02		☐

Expressive writing 2.3

Level 1 Level 2 Level 3

Journals and stories 2.3.01

Relates stories (experiences, thoughts, likes and dislikes) to teacher. Teacher transcribes the story, word for word. Learner copies, then reads it back (Experience Story). 2.3.01.01

☐

Writes stories from experience but may still require teacher's assistance for brainstorming and organization, whether working alone or with fellow learners. 2.3.01.02

☐

Does pre-writing activities more independently, working alone or with others. 2.3.01.03

☐

Unplanned writing is fluent enough to flow in a clear sequence. 2.3.01.04

☐

Brainstorms "short story" when given a start such as "I'll never forget the day my horse died," or when led with questions. 2.3.01.05

☐

Sequences events before writing a story, then ties events together with a good ending. 2.3.01.06

☐

Poems 2.3.02

Collaborates with teacher in creating a poem from vivid images that come up in conversation. 2.3.02.01

☐

Presented with "Love is....," etc., makes lists of images and arranges these into a poem. 2.3.02.02

☐

With encouragement, collects images from journals or personal writing to arrange into poetic form. Sometimes makes rhyming verse, given a model. 2.3.02.03

☐

Reading for pleasure and information 2.4

Books 2.4.01

Chooses own reading at appropriate level. 2.4.01.01

☐

Develops a strategy for "casing" a text for organization and general themes, using cover blurbs, tables of contents, section headings, or other indicators before beginning a close reading. 2.4.01.02

☐

Enjoys being read to and reading with tutor, especially children's books or adult literacy books. 2.4.01.03

☐

Reads special low-vocabulary editions of detective, romance, and other adult fiction. May be interested in comprehension questions. 2.4.01.04

☐

Reads "literary" simplified readers. 2.4.01.05

☐

Enjoys reading books created for adult learners. 2.4.01.06

☐

Reads books to children or grandchildren. 2.4.01.07

☐

Reads unedited adult romance, mystery, detective, and other mass-market fiction. 2.4.01.08

☐

Follows simple stories in talking books while listening to tape. 2.4.01.09

☐

Enjoys "simplified" biography. 2.4.01.10

☐

Becomes voracious reader of self-help books. 2.4.01.11

☐

Infers events and meaning beyond that which is printed in stories, editorials, and other material. 2.4.01.12

☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Magazines and periodicals 2.4.02	Flips through magazines and tabloids, looking mostly at pictures and captions. 2.4.02.01	☐
	Picks up and reads incidental material, magazines, and newspapers as a form of relaxation. 2.4.02.02		☐
	Often carries own reading material to pass the time on buses or in other waiting situations. 2.4.02.03			☐
	Skims for key words when searching for specific information. 2.4.02.04			☐
Poems 2.4.03	Memorizes and "reads" short poems. 2.4.03.01	☐
	Re-reads poetry that gave pleasure when first presented by teacher. 2.4.03.02		☐
	Memorizes favourite poems. Reads further selections by favourite poets. 2.4.03.03			☐
Religious texts (not for everyone) 2.4.04	Memorizes favourite verses; "reads" them from printed cards. 2.4.04.01	☐
	Reads familiar passages aloud with understanding. 2.4.04.02		☐
	Turns to the right page and follows text in public services; reads alone at home. 2.4.04.03			☐

Dictionary use 2.5

Finds words in a beginner's dictionary with effort. 2.5.01.01

☐

Turns to the right section of a dictionary or phone book (beginning/middle/end) when looking up a word. 2.5.01.02

☐

Distinguishes example from definition in dictionary. Looks for different forms of word at end of entry. 2.5.01.03

☐

Begins to make use of guide words when using dictionary or telephone book. 2.5.01.04

☐

Consistently uses guide words to speed up search when using a dictionary or phone book. 2.5.01.05

☐

Newspaper 2.6

Overview 2.6.01

Flips through paper with expectation of finding different kinds of information in different sections. Attempts to read captions under picture. 2.6.01.01

☐

Uses Contents to find different sections. Puzzles out the meaning of a fair number of headlines. Reads short items of interest. 2.6.01.02

☐

Makes a point of obtaining a newspaper every day and reading sections of interest. Becomes aware of main news stories using headlines. 2.6.01.03

☐

Begins to separate fact from opinion in news stories, editorials, and features. 2.6.01.04

☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Advertising 2.6.02	Looks in classified section for specific needs such as Help Wanted or Articles for Sale . Finds specific words such as cleaner and washing machine . 2.6.02.01	☐
	Compares offerings in classified, having read descriptions and understood special vocabulary. 2.6.02.02		☐
	"Window-shops" in classified section. 2.6.02.03			☐
	Writes a classified ad, placing the word(s) that states the purpose of the ad at the beginning and including all pertinent information. 2.6.02.04		☐
	Becomes more critical in comparison shopping using ads. 2.6.02.05			☐
	Chooses specials in grocery ads. 2.6.02.06	☐
	Compares prices between stores, understands discounts, and uses coupons. 2.6.02.07		☐
TV listings 2.6.03	Finds favourite shows and times in TV listings. 2.6.03.01	☐
	Reads description of TV shows, movies, and summaries of soaps. 2.6.03.02		☐
	Skims television listings (or TV guide) for interesting shows. 2.6.03.03			☐

		Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Features 2.6.04	Finds movies and times in entertainment section. Finds lottery numbers. 2.6.04.01	☐
	Reads horoscope, advice column, sports, and/or comics. 2.6.04.02		☐
	Learns to doubt or disagree with things in print. 2.6.04.03			☐
	Expresses opinion in a letter to the editor. 2.6.04.04			☐

Library use 2.7

Has a card. Establishes comfortable rapport with librarian. Finds children's section, literacy section, talking books, books with pictures, newspapers, and magazines. 2.7.00.01

☐

Asks librarian for assistance in finding material. 2.7.00.02

☐

Consults encyclopedia, dictionary, and atlas. Finds simplified readers. 2.7.00.03

☐

Asks librarian for assistance after attempting to find material unassisted. Becomes more familiar with the variety of reference books available. 2.7.00.04

☐

Follows library rules; knows the hours; returns books on time. 2.7.00.05

☐

Starts to use card or computer catalogue. Looks under author, title, or subject where appropriate. 2.7.00.06

☐

TECHNICAL SKILLS

Characteristics of script/alphabet 3.1

Level 1 Level 2 Level 3

Script 3.1.01 recognition/ production

Recites alphabet in order. 3.1.01.01

☐

Names letters in non-cursive script.
Distinguishes between "capital" and
"small" letters. 3.1.01.02

☐

Reads carefully produced standard
cursive script. 3.1.01.03

☐

Reads non-standard cursive script.
